MARCH, APRIL, MAY

Are the best months to purify the blood, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine to do it.

At no other season is the system so susceptible to the beneficial effects of medicine, hence this is the time to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to purify your blood and fortify your system against the debilitating effects of spring weather.

"I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla one of the best medicines for spring, when the blood is in a low condition and needs cleansing. I have been benefited by its use and have recommended it to my friends." W. H. Curtis, Ticket Agent, Boston and Maine Railroad, Haverhill, Mass.

"If people want a medicine to go through 'em and wake 'em up, tell them to take Hood's Sarsaparilla." Yours, Freeman N. Bixby, Meredith Village, N. H.

Take a spring medicine now. Don't wait till your system is reduced by spring weather, but get Hood's Sarsaparilla immediately. It sharpens the appetite, tones the stomach, invigorates the aged, and imparts new life and energy to all who take it. An alderman says: "It's the strongest Sarsaparilla I ever saw." Try it. One hundred doses, one dollar.

"I have never found anything that hit my wants as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over." J. P. Thompson, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me of dyspepsia, indigestion and debility. I can eat anything without that awful distress, have a tremendous appetite, and cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla too highly." Park Patten, Gardiner, Me.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Has met success at home never accorded to any other proprietary medicine. It has successfully combatted the strongest competition, and by its superior merit to-day commands the largest sale and the greatest confidence wherever it has been introduced. It is a skillfully prepared compound, concentrated extract by a process peculiarly our own, of the best remedies of the vegetable kingdom known to medical science as Alteratives, Blood Purifiers, Diuretics, Tonics, and Stomachics. These articles have been used for years, and their medicinal value is appreciated by every mother in the land. Time and constant use have proved their efficacy beyond a question. The wonderful results from the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla prove more than we have ever claimed for it.

"My wife has been troubled with indigestion and general debility, has taken eight bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and has derived an immense amount of benefit. We pronounce it a very excellent article." A. H. Holmes, Brunswick, Maine.

Will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Faintness at the Stomach, Headache, Constipation, Billiousness, Loss of Appetite, General Debility, Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaint, Female Weaknesses, Catarrh, Scrofula, Scrofulous and Cancerous Humors, Pain in Bones, Ulcers, Sores, Tumors, Salt-Rheum, and all diseases arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood.

"I have been troubled with Scrofula since childhood. Three years ago it broke out on my face, head and ears so they were one solid sore; my hair fell off; my sight and hearing were impaired. I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and in one year's time was entirely cured. I am positive that it has purified my blood." Mrs. Mary H. Parkman, Dexter, Me.

"I have suffered from Kidney Complaint and Biliousness fifteen years. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me." Jonathan J. Coburn, Dracut, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me of a sore mouth which had troubled me five years." Mrs. E. Buttrick, West Lynn, Mass.

THE RIGHTS OF EXPRESS COMPANIES.

THE RECENT DECISION OF JUDGE MILLER—SATISFACTION OF THE EXPRESSMEN—THE QUESTION LIKELY TO BE CARRIED TO THE SUPREME COURT.

The decision of Justice Miller, of the United States Supreme Court, sitting in the United States Circuit Court at Keokuk, Iowa, recently, in the suits against several Western railroads by the Southern and Adams Express Companies, has been awaited with great interest by express company managers. The suits involved questions vital to the existence of the express companies. Their business would virtually have been destroyed had the decision of the Court been adverse to them, and had it been confirmed by the Supreme Court. The litigation arose from the efforts made a few years ago by several prominent railroad companies to exclude all express companies from operating over their lines. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company was the first leading company to undertake its own express business, about six years ago. In the New England States a number of small express companies had been compelled to withdraw from some of the small roads. About two years ago the Pacific Express Company was established on the lines of the Union Pacific and Wabash railroad system, and the result, combined with the action of several large Western railroads against the Adams, the Southern and the American Express Companies, was to force a legal issue between the roads and the express companies to determine the rights of the latter. The railroads claimed the right to exclude all outside express business from their lines, which claim was stoutly resisted by the express companies.

The express business is more than forty years old. There are 464 express companies at present in existence in the United States. The three principal ones are the Adams, which operates over the Pennsylvania Railroad system; the American, which is favored particularly by the New York Central; and the United States, whose arrangements are specially made with the New York, Lake Erie and Western. The Southern Express Company is another of the leading companies. In the suits at the West it was put in evidence, for the purpose of proving the magnitude of the business, that in 1879 the property transported by the four express companies named above was valued at more than $3,000,000,000. This amount it was testified to, was greater than the value, at the place of production, of the products of the soil—such as grain, coal, iron, ore, cotton, etc.—which were transported in that year by all the railroads in the country. It was shown that the express companies paid to the railroads more than the latter received for carrying the United States mails.

Conversing recently with a Tribune reporter on the subject, William B. Dinsmore, President of the Adams Express Company, said: "The suits before Justice Miller were occasioned by the attempt of the railroads a few years ago to strip the express companies of their rights. At first we thought we had no redress, but we find now that we have. The principal point in Justice Miller's decision is that which establishes the equal right of all express companies to obtain full transportation facilities from the railroads at reasonable rates of compensation. The ticklish question will be to decide what those rates shall be, but the Court holds that they must be based on equity. The business of the country could not be conducted without the express companies. Their superiority over the ordinary freight transportation by railroad, besides the time saved, lies in the fact that shippers obtain a receipt for the safe delivery of their goods through to their destination, enabling losses and damages to be recovered promptly. In shipping freight ordinarily the railroads give a receipt only for the safe transportation over each particular line, and in case of loss of goods going over several railroads from one place to another it is difficult to prove just which road is responsible. All the exchanges of money between different parts of the country take place through the express companies, and that part of the business itself represents an enormous value. It is even best for the interests of the railroads that we should continue our business, for they receive more money from us than when they conduct their own express business."

"Some railroad reports perhaps would not sustain that view," suggested the reporter.

"There are some peculiar methods in railroad bookkeeping," Mr. Dinsmore responded. "Where the roads have shown profits in their express business they have been made at the expense of the freight department. I say that the railroads, if they should conduct their express business legitimately, in the same manner as the express companies do, would receive less from it than they receive at present from the express companies." Mr. Dinsmore expressed gratification at Judge Miller's decision, and said he had little doubt of its confirmation if the case was appealed by the railroads to the Supreme Court. The case, however, could not be reached on appeal for two or three years, and in the meantime the express companies would be protected in their business.

A well-known lawyer, familiar with the recent litigation, said: "The Atchison, Topeka and San Fe Railroad about a year ago last June gave notice of the termination of its contract with the Adams Company, stating it had made an exclusive arrangement with Wells, Fargo & Co. The Adams offered to pay the same terms without effect. Next the Denver and Rio Grande refused to allow the Adams to operate over its extensions built after their original contract was made. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas then took similar action, but subsequently offered to allow the Adams facilities on the same terms with the Pacific Express. These terms were deemed exorbitant by the Adams Company, and were refused. To prevent itself from being ejected from these lines the Adams Company obtained injunctions against them, which were continued until the suits brought by it were reached and decided by Justice Miller. Hence the express companies have not lost any money by the action of the railroads, and are now confirmed in the enjoyment of their rights. In addition to the roads mentioned above, similar hostile action was taken by the Louisville and Nashville, and the roads which it controls, against the Adams and Southern Express Companies; by the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago, and Toledo, Delphos and Burlington against the American, and by the Iron Mountain and the Memphis and Little Rock against the Southern. The only express companies which ever were thrown from railroads were several small ones on lines in Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania some years ago. If the position of the railroads had been sustained the business of the express companies would have been completely destroyed in the course of time. I suppose the railroads will appeal from Justice Miller's decision.'

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The Journal says: "Among Lewiston's importations, were a carload of pig iron, from Glasgow, for the Lewiston Machine Company, and a carload of Scotch potatoes for Messrs. C. M. Maxwell & Co. This lot of potatoes is half of a lot of 1,000 bushels received by this firm."

Cumberland.

At the receiver's sale of stock, carriages, farming tools, &c., at Riverton Farm, Deering, Thursday, about $5000 were realized.

The inspection of sergeants of the First Maine Regiment will take place in Portland, to-day, and in the evening Gen. Brown will give them a supper at the Falmouth.

The Portland Press says: "Mr. Smith, a colored man, employed on one of the boats, has mysteriously disappeared. He told his wife that if he did not come back Monday not to be alarmed. She thought he was joking, but the next morning a note was found on the mantel-piece to the same tenor, and nothing has been heard of him. He told a friend he felt sick and was going to the hospital, but search there failed to find him."

Mr. David Loveitt, one of the oldest residents of Point Village, Cape Elizabeth, died Tuesday afternoon at the age of 68 years. His death is the first one in a most remarkable family of nine persons, the children of Jedediah Loveitt, who was well known years ago as a fish dealer on what was then Ingraham's, and now Commercial wharf. There are but two younger than he was and all are living—five of them in that town.

Mrs. Prof. T. C. Upham died very suddenly, at her residence in New York, on Saturday, last. The body was brought to Brunswick for burial. The services were holden at 3:30 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, at the Congregational church. Prof. Upham resigned his position as professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy at Bowdoin College, in 1868. He then went to New York, where he remained until the time of his death, a few years after. His text books on Mental and Moral Philosophy are well known and still used to some extent. But a few weeks since Mrs. Upham was swindled out of a large amount of property, amounting to ten or twelve thousand dollars.

The Portland Press says: "It has been customary when the Portland Steam Packet Company's boat failed to run, owing to storms, for Prince's and Swett's Express Companies to send their packages via the Boston & Maine freight train due in Portland about 4 A. M. Tuesday, owing to the storm this plan was pursued. About 7 o'clock when the expressmen went to the car attached to the Boston & Maine freight which is devoted to their use, the first sight which greeted their eyes was the broken seal on the lock of the car. The law, as we understand it, requires the railroad company to see that the seals on the car are in perfect condition at every station—at least so we are informed—and therefore as soon as it was noticed that the seal on this car was broken it was at once felt that mischief had been done. When the car was opened everything was discovered in the greatest confusion. Spools of thread, pieces of silk, suits of clothing, hats, collars, shirts, in fact everything one could think of, were mixed up higgledy-piggledy, boxes had been ripped to pieces, and the large trunk in which Prince's express places its most valuable packages had been broken apart by the vigorous use of an axe. This axe bore on its handle the name of Locke, and is thought to have been one taken from a package of axes left at Dover, N. H."

Hancock.

Several cargoes of ice are being shipped from N. E. Harbor, Mt. Desert, to parties in Wilmington. One large vessel has been loaded, and cleared on the 16th. Another three masted schooner of about 700 tons is now at the pier taking in cargo.

A sad accident occurred at Mt. Desert, on the 17th, to a son of Mr. Candage, aged 13 years, who was at work on the ice. While standing in the sluice a cake of ice came down upon him throwing him from the sluice, breaking his leg above the knee and otherwise bruising him. The ice comes down when cold with great velocity and some idea of the blow it would strike may be imagined from the fact that at the time of the accident the boy's foot was caught and wedged in the track so that he could not disengage it, and the ice cake struck with such force as to break a two inch spruce joist which held his foot.—Ellsworth American.

Somerset.

The thirteenth quarterly convention of Reform Clubs, of Somerset County, was held at Blackwell Hill, Madison, Wednesday, the 15th inst. A. E. Moore, of Madison, was chosen President. The speeches were limited to five minutes each, and many addresses were made. Among the resolutions there adopted was one declaring "that the temperance people of Somerset county must gratefully acknowledge the unswerving fidelity to the temperance cause evinced by the Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr., member of Congress from the Second Congressional district of Maine, both in his Congressional labors and in his intercourse with his fellow men in Washington, and we most cordially extend to him our goodwill and fellowship, as well as to other public officers, irrespective of party, who unflinchingly advocate temperance and manfully denounce the curse of intemperance." Committee on time and location reported that the next county convention would be held at Bingham on the 15th day of June.

Mr. James McRay launched at Kennebunkport a first class center-board schooner Monday the 21st, which he built for Capt. B. Oakes. She is 91 feet keel, 27 feet beam, 8¼ feet hold, 162 tons measurement.

The additions and improvements to the Ocean Bluff Hotel at Kennebunkport are being rapidly pushed to completion. The Ocean Bluff is now a mammoth hotel, and its appointments are first class in every particular, and it has a fine location for extensive ocean and inland scenery.

THE NEW WHEAT REGION.

One of our New York exchanges gives the following facts concerning the new wheat region of the West. "The rapid settlement of the wheat lands of Dakota is perhaps the most striking feature of recent Western development. It is estimated that the farming population of the Territory has been increased fully 30,000 since the census of 1880 was taken, and the immigration of 1882 promises to be much greater than that of any previous year. A majority of the newcomers are no doubt attracted by the profits of wheat-raising. Making due allowance for the enthusiasm of new settlers and of the local journals, it appears from the census returns and from the published statements of farmers that a yield of not less than twenty bushels to the acre can be depended on year after year, and that twenty-five bushels is not an extraordinary crop. The cost of breaking new land is said to average $1.75 an acre, of "backsetting," as the second or spring ploughing is called, $1.50; of seeding $2 50, of harvesting $2, and of threshing $1; making $8.75 per acre. After the first year only one ploughing is necessary. Some statements place the cost of the grain threshed and ready for market at $9 for each acre's yield; others give it as low as $6—the difference being mainly due, no doubt, to variations in the price of labor. Taking the highest estimate as a basis for calculation, with wheat at $1 a bushel, the profit of the farmer on each acre of ground cultivated, after all expenses of raising and marketing his crop are paid, cannot well fall below $10 an acre.

The enterprise of railroad companies eager to occupy a field of future profitable business makes transportation facilities in Dakota keep pace with settlement. In the southern part of the Territory the Chicago and Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Companies have built trunk lines to the Missouri River, which are being pushed on to the Black Hills, and have constructed numerous branches as feeders. The Red River Valley is traversed for nearly its entire length by two roads, one on each bank of the stream. Across the northern part of the territory, from east to west, runs the Northern Pacific Railroad, which is building branches north and south to widen the area of wheat culture. Thus in most of the new wheat region the farmer finds a station within a few miles of his fields and a freight train ready to haul his grain to market.

The work on a wheat farm occupies only a few weeks of the year, and the business is attractive on that account apart from its profits. After the ploughing and sowing are finished the farmer can look on and see Nature grow and ripen his crop until the harvest time comes. By the end of August the year's work is done. Expensive farm buildings are not required, for the grain is threshed in the fields and hauled immediately to the nearest railway station. Very little fencing is needed on a wheat farm. Frequently the cultivated portion is left uninclosed, and a barbed wire fence put around the pasture lot to confine the cattle. Thus the outlay for improvements is comparatively light, and as the country is open and ready for the plough, the new settler makes a crop the first season, and is tolerably independent from the start. A village with school, post office, stores and churches springs up as if by magic in the neighborhood of his home, and he suffers few of the privations which used to attend frontier life.

The extent of the new Northwestern wheat region cannot now be estimated, nor its future production foreseen. It appears to include nearly the whole of Dakota east of the Missouri River, and a considerable portion of the western half of the Territory. How far north and west in Manitoba it reaches will only be determined as settlement advances in that little-known Province. One thing is to be borne in mind about this region—it is the ultimate and permanent wheat-field of the continent. The wheat-growing industry has been steadily moving west for more than half a century. Western New York and Eastern Pennsylvania were once the great wheat sections. Then Ohio had its turn. Now the counties of that State which forty years ago shipped large quantities of wheat to the East do not raise enough to supply their own population with bread. Afterward Indiana, Southern Michigan, Northern Illinois and Wisconsin made wheat the chief crop, to be succeeded by Iowa, and now by Minnesota, Nebraska and Dakota. The wheat belt cannot move much further west. It will soon reach the great grassy plains where there is not sufficient rainfall for successful agriculture. Beyond the Rocky Mountains, in Oregon and Washington Territory, a new wheat country of immense extent is being slowly developed; but on the Atlantic side of the continent the area where wheat-farming is the chief industry will not be pushed much beyond the present limits of Dakota. The rich lands in the Valley of the Red River of the North and the vast rolling plains of Dakota and Manitoba are evidently destined to be a permanent granary, like Hungary and Southern Russia.

Their product it is interesting to note, seeks the markets of the world by way of the harbor of New-York. A glance at a map will show that the water route from the head of Lake Superior to Buffalo and thence to New-York by the Erie Canal and the Hudson River is almost a direct line from the new wheat country of Northern Dakota. A short stretch of rail transportation brings the wheat produced on the vast Northwestern plains to cheap water transportation extending to the seaboard. The commerce of New-York cannot fail to profit directly and largely by the development of the new wheat region of the Far Northwest.

THE DEATH OF LONGFELLOW.

The echoes of the affectionate anniversary greetings upon the 75th birthday of the beloved American Poet have hardly ceased to vibrate from shore to shore when we are called to part with him whose beautiful productions have been so sweetly intertwined with our national life, and whose rare contributions to the literature of the age have reflected so much honor upon his native land. It is doubtful if any other name in modern literature of equal prominence is so entirely associated with ideas of purity and goodness, of unaffected refinement, of a manly superiority to all that is gross, and a womanly tenderness of nature, as that of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

In this hour when all the world of intelligence will stand in hushed sorrow by the death-bed of the master whose skilful fingers never swept the lyre with passion's discords, but drew forth only the calm, clear melody of light and love, we think of him as we saw him last and listened to him in the old church at Brunswick, when, in 1875, he brought the halo of his silver locks and the benediction of his gentle voice to render memorable the fiftieth anniversary of his Class of 1825. With the announcement of his death there seems to come to us in a sweet and solemn undertone the plaintive rhythm and prophetic pathos of his poem on that occasion, "Morituri Salutamus," which began and closed as follows:

"O, Cæsar, we who are about to die
Salute you!" was the gladiators' cry
In the arena, standing face to face
With death and with the Roman populace.

O ye familiar scenes—ye groves of pine,
That once were mine and are no longer mine—
Thou river, widening through the meadows green
To the vast sea, so near and yet unseen—
Ye halls, in whose seclusion and repose
Phantoms of fame, like exhalations, rose,
And vanished—we who are about to die
Salute you, earth and air and sea and sky,
And the Imperial Sun that scatters down
His sovereign splendors upon grove and town.

Ye do not answer me! ye do not hear!
We are forgotten and in your austere
And calm indifference, ye little care
Whether we come or go, or whence or where.
What passing generations fill these halls,
What passing voices echo from these walls,
Ye heed not, we are only as the blast,
A moment heard and then forever past.

* * * * * * *

What then? Shall we sit idly down and say
The night hath come; it is no longer day?
The night hath not yet come; we are not quite
Cut off from labor by the failing light
Something remains for us to do or dare;
Even the oldest tree some fruit may bear;

* * * * * * *

For age is opportunity no less
Than youth itself, though in another dress,
And as the evening twilight fades away
The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day.

DEMOCRATIC DISAGREEMENTS.

[From the Boston Journal.]

The responses of prominent Democratic papers to the speeches made by leading Democrats at the Iroquois Club banquet in Chicago, last week, indicate a general indefiniteness and a general disagreement respecting Democratic principles and the policy the party must pursue in the future. The Atlanta (Georgia) Constitution is a Democratic journal which has turned its face toward the future. It objects to the name Iroquois as being that of an extinct race. In the speeches and letters it finds too much about Jefferson and Jackson, and very little about present matters and future policies. It observes that "the civil war was a deluge, and there is neither sense nor business in going back of the flood for planks with which to frame a platform acceptable to those who know little and care less about affairs fifty years ago." "Such talk," it goes on, "means dry rot, and the party that hopes to win in 1884 cannot indulge in it."

The Constitution, we assume, takes no stock in ex-Senator Trumbull's fears that the furnishing of soldiers to the Governor of Nebraska to hold rioters in check indicates "the end of Constitutional Government." Another day the same paper takes up the matter again. It agrees with Mr. Watterson about the deluge, but when it comes to the motto which Mr. Watterson would inscribe on the Democratic banner in 1881—"A Tariff for Revenue Only"—the Constitution dissents and says there is nothing in that cry, because wide-awake men in Georgia now see that a reasonable tariff is necessary to insure the development of the growing industries of the South. The Cincinnati Enquirer, a Democratic newspaper, is moved to express itself in queries to an extent which must exhaust the stock of interrogation points in the cases of the compositors.

Mr. Watterson was the only speaker at Chicago who named a policy for the Democratic party. As indicated by the remarks of the Georgia paper, leading Democratic papers, in States where the party has a majority, as a rule do not subscribe to the Watterson creed. The St. Louis Republican, the well-known Democratic journal of Missouri, declares that Mr. Watterson's speech was a mixture of toadyism to Republicans and of political opinions which Jackson spent his life in combating."

These are samples of the responses of prominent Democratic journals to the public expressions of the leading Democrats of the country. They nearly all dissent. If they agree it is upon historical questions. They find fault because the leaders, or those who ought to be leaders, do not define the issues upon which they can go before the country and ask its support, but the ablest Democratic editor is dumb when he gets beyond a loud reaffirmation of the principles of Jefferson and Jackson. On the question of the tariff they disagree; to civil service reform, based upon business principles, nearly all except Mr. Pendleton are hostile; and so through the list. In the House, the policy of the Democrats is now the same as it has been since 1860—to prevent progress. Having done nothing but denounce what Republicans have proposed or accomplished for more than twenty years, Democratic leaders in Congress now seem to lack capacity to do anything else than condemn and obstruct.

The Hon. William Walter Phelps, who is now travelling in Egypt, attended a banquet given by the Americans at Cairo in honor of Washington's birthday, and made a pleasant little speech. The Khedive's Cabinet and the representatives of the foreign Governments in Egypt were present, and many complimentary toasts were proposed.

A remarkable case of fraud on the Government has been unearthed at Darlington, S. C. A man named Horn has been detected in fraudulently drawing the pension of a soldier of the war of 1812 who died in 1878. In order to obtain the money it was necessary for him to forge the signatures to the dead man's vouchers every quarter since his death.

THE UNITED STATES AND CHILI.

TEXT OF THE PROTOCOL BETWEEN MR. TRESCOTT AND THE CHILIAN MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

A Panama despatch of March 11, says: The following is the text of the protocol executed between Mr. Trescott, United States Minister Extraordinary to Chili, and Senor Balmaceda, Chilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, as published in the Chilian official papers in Lima. Although published without signatures it is doubtless authentic:

In conferences celebrated in the Foreign Office in Santiago on the 18th, 19th and 20th of February of the present year 1882, Senor Jose Manuel Balmaceda, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Chili, and Mr. W. H. Trescott, Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States of America, discussed in a frank and friendly manner the relations existing between the United States of America and Chili and Peru, and between the latter Republics, and after exchanging various ideas in terms which were reciprocally amicable, they mutually agreed to confine this protocol solely to the conclusions which they arrived at in those conferences.

Firstly, Mr. Trescott stated that the United States had recognized the Government of Garcia Calderon out of friendship for the belligerents and in the interests of peace, and that as his Government had been the only one which had recognized it by accrediting a representative to it, it might be believed the imprisonment of Garcia Calderon was an act which offended the United States. Senor Balmaceda answered that Chili abolished the authority of Garcia Calderon within the lines held by the troops, and that he was arrested without any intention of offending the United States or any other neutral power, and simply in the use of the legitimate rights of a belligerent. No further discussion on this point took place.

Secondly, armed intervention by the United States in the war being carried on by Chili against Peru would not be a diplomatic proceeding such as that now being adopted, nor would it, consequently, be in accord with the friendly spirit of the mission confided to Mr. Trescott, and mediation is not advisable, as convenient to the belligerents or solicited by Chili. The United States eliminate from the discussion the possibility of armed intervention, and will offer their mediation only in the event of the belligerents expressing a desire to obtain it, and when its acceptance would lead to a result satisfactory to both.

Thirdly, the incident relating to the imprisonment of Garcia Calderon and the armed intervention and the mediation of the United States being points which are eliminated from the discussion and definitely terminated, Chili declares its feelings of mutual friendship and confidence, that if they were offered she would accept the good offices of the United States in the contest with Peru, if in employing such good offices the United States would accept the terms of peace which Chili is disposed to offer the enemy, it being understood that if the United States should not obtain the consent of Peru to the conditions of peace which serve as a basis to the employment of their good offices, in such case the action of the United States between the belligerents will at once cease.

Fourthly, should the good offices of the United States be offered or accepted in the form previously expressed, Chili will, through its civil and military authorities, give every honorable facility to Mr. Trescott to enable him to communicate with any Peruvian authorities or individuals whom he may consider fitting to receive, the offer of such good offices, with the exception only of Garcia Calderon, who is a prisoner of war.

Fifthly, the basis upon which Chili will celebrate peace, duly reserving all of the rights and liberty of action should they not be accepted by Peru, are as follows:

1st—Cession to Chili of all Peruvian territory south of the Camarones Quebrada.

2nd—Occupation of the Department of Arica and Tacna for ten years, at the expiration of which term Peru will pay $20,000,000. Should the said $20,000,000 not be paid to Chili at the expiration of the ten years, the territory of Arica and Tacna will remain ipso facto ceded to and incorporated with the Republic of Chili. Peru may fix in the terms of peace, a larger term than ten years, but always subject to the same conditions; should Arica return to the Dominion of Peru it shall never be fortified.

3d—Chili shall occupy the Lobos Islands whilst guano remains on them, and the net proceeds of such guano, as also of that from the deposits which are known and being worked in Tarapaca, shall be equally divided between Chili and the creditors of Peru.

Finally, Mr. Trescott believed it necessary to telegraph to his Government and await instructions as to whether he should offer the good offices of the United States in the form and under the conditions previously expressed.

SHOULDERING HIS OWN ACTS.

MRS. SPRAGUE AND THE GARFIELD-CHASE LETTERS.

[From the Philadelphia Press.]

To the public: Two or three Washington newspapers having seen fit to make certain statements accusing Mrs. Katharine Chase Sprague of having furnished the so-called Garfield-Rosecrans letter for publication, it becomes necessary and proper for me to say that I gave that letter to Mr. Dana without the knowledge or consent of Mrs. Sprague or of any other member of the family of the late Chief Justice. I have not seen Mrs. Sprague since June, 1873, and in the meantime not one word has passed between us directly or indirectly touching General Garfield's letters or upon any other subject. General Garfield's letters to Mr. Chase have not been out of my possession for eight years, and I do not believe that Mrs. Sprague had any knowledge whatever of the contents of any of them previous to the publication of that in the Sun. This statement will show how shamefully false and cruel the accusation against Mrs. Sprague is. Whatever sin or responsibility attaches for bringing the Garfield letter into the control of Mr. Dana attaches wholly and exclusively to me. All accusations involving any other person than myself, whether man or woman, Stalwart, Half-Breed or Democrat, are alike without foundation.

A LIVELY TOWN MEETING.

THE RECRUIT THE REPUBLICANS GAINED AT ISLESBORO.

The Islesboro correspondent of the Belfast Journal, in giving the result of the town meeting tells the following: "Party lines were strictly drawn, resulting in victory and defeat for both parties, but showing that the Greenback rule, which we have so long suffered under, is surely disappearing from view. Several of the most prominent Greenback leaders have bolted squarely in the face of their party. Among the most prominent of them appears Capt. Robert B. Trimm, a strong partisan and for years the backbone of Democracy and Greenbackism in this town. During the election Monday he watched the progress of matters with a critic's eye and before its close, rising upon a bench and shouting with stentorian voice, he made the following declaration: 'Democrats and Greenbackers! I have traveled with you all my life; have followed you through all manner of evil scheming and disgrace, and now I bid you an everlasting farewell. Henceforth and forever you will find me with the Republican party, and so long as the breath of Heaven shall continue to sustain this perishing frame, just so long will I support their platform—so help me God.' A murmur of disapprobation arose from one side of the house at the loss of their distinguished leader, and a shout of victory came from the other at the addition of one more to their fast filling ranks."

An English lad of 14, an inmate of the Birkdale Reformatory, died the other day of tobacco poison. The use of tobacco being forbidden in the institution, he swallowed some which he had obtained, in order to escape detection, and became very sick. He vomited two pieces of the weed, but died soon after.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Several newspapers have given Hon. Frank Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., the title of ex-Governor. If New Hampshire was in the way of electing Democratic Governors, Mr. Jones would surely have the title, but as it has not been in the past and isn't likely to do so in the future, Mr. Jones discreetly declines to be a candidate for the office again.

Mr. Watterson's attempt to put the Democratic party on a free trade basis received but little sympathy in the South. The sentiment of that neighborhood is fairly reflected by the Augusta Chronicle, when it says: "We fear that Mr. Watterson's 'tariff for revenue' plank will give the flagship another false bottom. Leaks may sometimes sink a raft which has defied all the battles and the breezes."

New Hampshire will elect this year a Governor, Congressmen, and a Legislature that will choose a United States' Senator. The Democrats are hoping that there will be enough division and apathy in the Republican ranks to give them the State. There does not appear to be a rush, however, among the prominent men in that party to secure nominations. The prospect cannot be very bright when a party organ has to announce that "there is not a Democratic aspirant for Gubernatorial honors in the State." On the Republican side hopes are bright and candidates plenty.

The Democratic party in Cincinnati is in a demoralized condition on the eve of the spring election. Two conventions have been called for the nomination of candidates for city offices. One call comes through the regular party executive committee, while the other is from a self-constituted committee for a mass convention. Both conventions may unite on the same ticket, but the probabilities are that the differences, of which the two conventions are an outgrowth, will be irreconcilable, and that the Republicans, who are united, will have an easy victory.

The Buffalo Courier understands that ex-Governor Tilden's collection of portraits of Milton is the finest in the country. P. S.—We understand that the ex-Governor took to reading "Paradise Lost" as soon as he heard of the decision of the Electoral Commission; that every time he thinks of 1884 he reads "Paradise Regained"; and that General Winfield Scott Hancock, as soon as he was informed of the nomination for President made at Cincinnati in 1880, telegraphed him the Miltonian consolation: "They also serve who only stand and wait."

NEW MAGAZINES.

ECLECTIC MAGAZINE. The April number of the Eclectic is at hand and contains a very large number of noteworthy and readable articles. The table of contents is as follows: Science and Morality, by Professor Goldwin Smith; A Modern Solitary (meaning Obermann, the German Mystic); Romance of Business; Electric Progress; Lines to a Lady who was robbed of her Jewels, by Francis Hastings Doyle; The Revision of the French Constitution, by Joseph Reinach; Mr. Swinburne Trilogy on Mary Queen of Scots, by G. A. Simcox; Fashions and Physiology, by J. Milner Fothergill, M. D.; Let Nobody Pass; A Guardsman's Story; National Wealth and Expenditure, by M. G. Mulhall; Oddities of Personal Nomenclature; Crab Gossip; The Ameer's Soliloquy; The Crisis in Servia, by O. K.; Robert Southey and Caroline Bowles; Prince Potemkin; Degeneration. Besides these there are four well-filled Editorial Departments; Literary Notices; Foreign Literary Notes; Science and Art; and Miscellany. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single copy, 45 cents; Trial subscription for three months, $1.

Toward Literature

[illegible] been so stimulated by the flattering reception of some pieces of poetry he published during his college course that he dropped all thoughts of Blackstone and Coke In 1826 he was offered the Professorship of Modern Languages and Literature in Bowdoin, which he accepted on condition that he might devote some time to preliminary foreign study Early in the year he sailed for Europe remaining abroad till 1829 and studying successively in France, Spain Italy and Germany Upon his return he discharged the duties of the Professorship in his Alma Mater for five years During this time he contributed to the NorthAmerican Review and published his translation of "Copeas de Manrique and his "Outre Mer Longfellow was appointed Professor of Modern Languages and Literature in

Harvard College.

[illegible] succeed Prof Ticknor Longfellow then made a second visit to Europe and passed about two years in Denmark, Sweden, Germany, Holland and Switzerland, during which he lost his wife at Rotterdam, Nov 29 1835 He returned to America in 1836 and entered on the Harvard Professorship which he held seventeen years, being succeeded in 1854 by James Russell Lowell Many of Longfellow's best and most popular works were published during the time he was a professor at Harvard. In May, 1868, Prof. Longfellow revisited Europe where he was received with marked honors, which naturally reached their climax in England, where it was said by the

Westminster Review

not one of his English contemporaries had had wider or longer supremacy. In 1868, also, Longfellow was elected a member of the Reform Club. In July, 1869, he received the degree of D. C. L. at Oxford and returned to this country the 31st of August, 1869. In 1874 Longfellow was nominated Lord Rector of the University of Edinburgh and received a large complimentary vote. He was a member of the Brazil Historical and Geographical Society of the Scientific Academy of St. Petersburg and of the Royal Academy of Spain, and received other like honors from foreign bodies and associations of a literary and historical character, which thus expressed their appreciation of

His Literary Work

and broad scholarship. While Longfellow has always been averse to public testimonials and celebrations, his birthday, specially late years, has been the occasion of many pleasant demonstrations of affection Particularly was this true of the last birthday, the 27th of last month, when to a very large extent the schools all over the country gave a whole or part of the day to the study of his writings and to essays and addresses upon his character and life His native city of Portland desired to honor him with a public reception upon the same occasion, but failing health and aversion to public displays compelled him to decline the honor The Maine Historical Society however with eulogies, critical and personal essays and poems Longfellow has been twice married In 1831 he was wedded to Mary S Potter, daughter of Judge Barrett Potter, of Portland, who died as above stated, while journeying in Europe His second wife was Frances Elizabeth Appleton, daughter of Nathan Appleton, of this city, to whom he was married in 1843 In July 1861 she was burned so badly by touching a piece of burning paper to her dress by accident that she died the next day This lady was a woman of rare loveliness of face and character She was the mother of five children who survive Mr Longfellow

Kept the Day

The Sickness

of Longfellow, which has proved fatal was of the nature of acute inflammation of the bowels Though it had no direct connection with the nervous troubles which have grown upon him during the past two years his powers of recuperation were reduced by them as well as by his advanced years and he fell therefore, more easily a victim to the disease

RESULT OF STOCK SPECULATION.

A LARGE DEFALCATION.

EXETER N H March 24 The great excitement prevails here to day over the defalcation and failure of George L Lane banker and county treasury until January last Lane was treasurer of the Five Cent Savings Bank for about ten years and this bank has been doing a general banking business until last summer, when the legislature passed a law forbidding the bank and other cashiers from doing a banking business.

Lane then went into business for himself and has been dealing largely in stock He had the confidence and esteem of nearly every citizen and many of our business men had large deposits with him Col W N Dow, a leading lumberman and an influential citizen, had a large deposit with Lane and yesterday drew a check for $3000 which was refused by Richardson Hill & Co, of Boston, Lane's bankers, and Dow immediately questioned Lane, who at once went to Boston and by their advice gave himself up to Sheriff Kent and is now in Kent's custody at Portsmouth

I are notified the County Commissioners that he had used about $125,000 of the county money and over $20,000 of depositors money Lane also owned a large and well paying bookstore and has always done a successful business in this. County Commissioner McDow, and John Bell, one of Lane's bondsmen have attached his stock of goods Lane's bondsmen are Chas H Bell James W Olvin Franklin B Cram, Wm B Morrill, John J Bell and Geo N Weston, the loss by these gentlemen will fall heavily on some, taking nearly all they are worth

Speculating in stocks beyond his means is the cause of Lane's downfall He had a large political influence and is Commissary General on Gov Bell's staff He is also President of the Union Five Cent Savings Bank, but its directors say this bank is not in the least affected by the trouble Lane was an economical man with no bad habits His bond with the county is $20 000

FORTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS- First Session

Senate

WASHINGTON, March 24 Mr Morrill, from the Finance Committee reported adversely Vest's bill to prohibit an issue of bank notes or currency by National banks, which may be organized or reorganized after July 1st 1882, put on the calender upon request of Vest

A large portion of the morning hour was spent on the Life Saving Service bill The Florida Senators insisted upon the provision of five stations at points on the Atlantic coast of Florida and on the Gulf coast Conger, in charge of the bill, argued that this was unnecessary, Jones, of Florida replied that the records showed 104 wrecks on the coast line just indicated The proposition was agreed to, ayes 36, nays 17

Mr Pendleton moved an amendment to the section prohibiting the appointment of keepers and crews for political reasons so as to extend it to the general superintendent, district superintents and inspectors

Mr Conger criticised this as an attempt to restrict the presidential appointing power. Mr Pendleton explained that his purpose was to include only the appointees of the Secretary of the Treasury and modified his amendment accordingly, which, on admission, was carried on a party vote, 25 to 23 Mr Conger's call for yeas and nays was met by cries from the Democratic side of too late, and the Chair so ruled

Mr Sewell moved an amendment authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to fix the pay of the men employed at the different stations in proportion to the services rendered, provided the same shall not exceed $50 per month adopted The bill then passed, yeas, 46, nays 8

Mr. Anthony reported from the committee on printing a joint resolution for the printing of Mr Blaine's memorial address on the life and character of the late President Garfield, passed.

At 3 10 P M, the Tariff Commission bill was again taken up. Quite a spirited discussion occurred, at the close of which an arrangement was effected by which the general debate on the bill is to close at four o'clock Tuesday after which amendments may be offered. The bill was then laid aside informally.

Adjourned till Monday.

House

Robinson, of New York, called attention to the rule which provides that a committee shall report back a resolution calling for departmental information within eight days, and to the fact that a resolution referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, relative to the imprisonment of American citizens in Great Britain had not been acted on "How long," he inquired, "will we neglect our citizens lingering in jail?"

Williams, of Wis., chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, said he felt authorized to state that communication was being constantly had with the Government of Great Britain by the State Department and it is understood in a few days the committee would be able to make an intelligent report on the resolutions.

Robinson—"If something is not done and our Minister has not demanded his passport I shall move an impeachment."

Wilson, of W. Va., a member of the committee, stated the resolution had not been reported back because the committee desired to obtain all the necessary information; there were no laxness on the part of the committee, and Robinson replied that it would make his question of impeachment unnecessary. The House then proceeded to a consultation on private business.

Thomas, of Kentucky, from the Committee on the Mississippi Levees, reported a bill appropriating $683,000 to be expended according to the plans of the Mississippi River Commission, for the improvement of navigation and commerce of the Mississippi river and the construction of works of improvement; referred to Committee of the Whole.

At 1.10 P. M. the House went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Valentine (Nev), in the chair, on private calendar.

Two hours were passed in discussing a bill referring to the claims of the captain of the ram Albemarle, which was reported favorably and passed by the House. A recess was then taken till evening for consideration of pension bills on the private calender. After the evening session the House adjourned till Monday.

A model of the statue of Washington, designed by J Q A. Ward for the steps of the United States Sub-Treasury in New York, was exhibited to a committee of the Chamber of Commerce of that city Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Ward, the sculptor, and Richard M. Hunt, the architect, being present. The figure of Washington is a noble one, simply treated, in the civil costume of Washington's time, standing easily, with the weight chiefly on the right foot. The right hand is extended at the level of the hips, as in the act of laying the hand upon the book, the manner of Washington's taking the oath at the time being commemorated by the statue.

The offer which has been made by the N B road is a liberal one, the business interests of this growing section demand it and our people will not be satisfied until the arrangement is effected —Republican.

PITTSFIELD NOTES Our correspondent writes from Pittsfield A good sized audience assembled at Institute chapel on Tuesday evening to listen to Rev S. C. Whitcomb's lecture on "The Yank." It was well received The third and fourth lectures in the Methodist course were delivered by Rev C B Pitblado Both lectures were excellent productions and were delivered in a fine oratorical manner. It is to be regretted that the attendance was not larger Friday evening the Universalist Society have a supper at their vestry and a dance and broom drill at Laney Hall An enjoyable time is anticipated

A COMMODIOUS CHAPEL The "young folks" connected with the Congregational Church in Brewer, have, for the past few years, taken a great interest in remodeling and furnishing their chapel, until they have one of the most cosy, homelike rooms in which to hold their weekly meetings to be found in this part of the State. A kitchen has recently been fitted up in the basement with cupboard, tables, dishes and every convenience necessary for levees and entertainments, and they appear to feel well repaid for their work, and well may Rev. Mr Beckwith feel proud of his society and his numerous congregation of "young folks."

FROM BRADFORD. At the close of the regular meeting of Bradford Lodge No 86, I O. O F, last Thursday evening, the members, joined by ladies, proceeded to the dining room of the Bradford Hotel where they partook of a bountiful supper prepared especially for the occasion. After supper a very pleasant sociable was held at their hall, lasting till 12 o'clock, when all went to their homes voting this one of the pleasant events of the season. ——Wm. A. Larrabee recently sold his farm at this place and will soon remove with his family to Katahdin Iron Works.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING IN DOVER. Our correspondent writes At the annual town meeting held the 13th inst., the town of Dover voted to abolish the two school districts adjoining the village and unite them to the village district. At a district meeting Thursday evening it was voted to raise $6000 for the erection during the present season of a suitable building to accommodate the district with graded schools. It was voted to build upon the lot lately occupied by the old Universalist church, which is a very desirable location as it affords good drainage, plenty of fresh air and a fine play-ground. Volney A. Gray, C. B. Kittredge and Dr. J. B. Cochran, were appointed a committee to secure plans, specifications, etc., for the building. It is thought that the new school building in Brewer is about what is needed and a committee will probably visit that building with a view to the erection of one similar. The move towards supplying Dover with a school building suitable for the requirements of a village of its size has long been contemplated and this is the favorable opportunity, as the old school buildings are badly out of repair and even when in repair are far from being suitable.

MASONIC VISIT Thursday evening, some seventeen couples came down from Brownville to Orono at the invitation of Mechanics Lodge, F & A. M, to pay a return visit to the Masonic brethren there They were met at the depot by a delegation from Mechanics lodge and were escorted to Masonic Hall, where a bountiful supper was in waiting to which all did ample justice After supper the visitors were entertained with remarks, vocal and instrumental music by the Orono ladies and several selections by a male quartette, all of which were ably presented The visitors were invited to the houses of the good people of the village and entertained for the night in a most hospitably manner The party returned home by train yesterday much pleased with their visit There were some one hundred and seventy-five present including a number from Oldtown The party express themselves as highly gratified with the visit and return many thanks to the brethren and their ladies of Orono and to Supt Brown of the B & P Road for kindness received.

REMARKABLE IGNORANCE OF THE NEW VERSION Stories about the "New Version" are almost passe, but a Bangor lady who has been spending the winter in Georgia vouches for the truthfulness of one which we consider worthy of publication She writes "I must tell you the story Mr King, the Presbyterian clergyman has told me It seems that previous to coming here he was settled in a village over the Blue Ridge Mountains and with the idea of letting his people know what was going on in the outside world, he introduced a copy of the "New Version" and tried to explain just what it was, simply a new translation of the Bible they had always had. A few understood him, but some began to doubt, and suspicion grew to a certainty Finally one man boldly asserted that the minister had written a new Bible which he was trying to palm off upon them as the word of God. The matter was brought before the church and some of the minister's friends tried to convince the man that such could not be the case, but he stoutly maintained it was and he said he could prove it from a Bible in the minister's possession. The Bible was brought, and the man triumphantly pointed to the proclamation found in the front of some Bibles, beginning, 'I, James King of England &c, &c,' (the minister's name is James King) and with the aggrieved parishoners standing about, the man excitedly asked, 'Now what better proof do we want than his own name put to it?' That the book in question was not a revised version did not make any difference to the accusers and Mr King says to this day many of them believe that he really wrote a new Bible What do you think of this for nineteenth century ignorance?"

MUSIC HALL.

Social Dance of the Ladies Relief Corps

The social dance given at Music Hall last evening by the Ladies' Relief Corps for the benefit of Post Beale, G A R, was very largely attended and proved one of the most successful entertainments of the season. Valuable assistance was rendered by ladies outside of the Corps and great credit is due to the Committee of Arrangements Mrs Sewall Downs, of Brewer, Mrs Percy Moore and Mrs Robt Bridges, of Bangor, for the excellent manner in which all the details were carried out. Some sixty couples occupied the floor and there were also a large number of spectators in the gallery. The orchestra furnished inspiring music under the lead of Mr Andrews and with Mr Jones at the piano, and at intermission choice refreshments were served by J. W Clapp The list of dances comprised thirteen numbers and all present entered heartily into the enjoyment of the occasion

West Waterville News

Our regular West Waterville correspondent writes as follows The D E T. Co are preparing to erect a large addition to their axe shop Many car loads of Norridgewock granite are being delivered for the foundation. The axe business of this as well as our other axe manufacturing firms, is steadily increasing, and Hubbard & Blake Mfg Co have put in an immense poll machine and are having all they can do to fill orders aside from their own wants —The ladies of the Universalist society will give a pleasing entertainment at Memorial Hall next Wednesday evening. The popular "Broom Drill" will be performed by sixteen young ladies in costume under the command of Mr J Wesley Gilman New military movements, original with this company, will be introduced, and a drill given that will make up the first part of the entertainment, ice cream and cake will be for sale and the popular farce 'Box and Cox' will be presented, closing the entertainment —Pullen's Orchestra five pieces of this village, will furnish the music for the Levee and Ball at Waterville, Nov 31st, given by Ticonic Engine Co of that village —Considering the bad traveling business is very good here

DECORATIVE ART ASSOCIATION

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier

'A thing of beauty is a joy forever' when it refines the taste, improves the mind and softens the heart of the possessor, or beholder, bringing it into sympathy with all, who in any manner however humble, may be aspiring to higher ideals of life—higher ideals in externals, and through these to higher spiritual ideals of beauty and truth These thoughts were happily suggested by a visit the other day to the Decorative Art Rooms, (up stairs, one door above Sweet's drug store, Main St,) where we found Mrs Wood, and Misses Eaton and Whitney, busily employed in arranging the works of art skill, and beauty of themselves and other ladies of Bangor, decorations on china silk and plush, prospective of a permanent exhibition on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons Mention of some of the art cles it is to be hoped, may be of interest to your readers

Plaque decorations seemed favorites with all, those with heads being furnished by Mrs Wood and Miss Moore, and several of different sizes by Miss L Eaton, one being a copy of a portrait by Sir J Reynolds one an ideal in Elizabethan costume, and another an original portrait of a New York lady. Miss Eaton also showed specimens of plush painting, beautiful water colors (flowers) on satin and a portrait of a child in oils, harmonious in coloring and life-like in expression

Miss Baldwin had some beautiful china decorations—a plaque in arabesque another representing a landscape with cattle, and a set of small butters with landscapes in sepia in blue, and in black and white She also had a banner of old gold satin decorated with peacock feathers and of three plush pieces harmonious in combination of colors, one was a looking glass frame with lovely pink roses Miss Moore had a beautiful plaque landscape, (two children gathering sea weed), and a large vase with flowers on one side on the other, butterflies in relief against a Turneresque sky and coast Mrs Walker had a pretty mottled jar decorated with narcissi, and another lady, whose name we are not allowed to mention showed an exquisite set of after dinner coffees in her own designs

Miss Whitney had a variety of worthy artistic work—decorations of china and Easter eggs painting on plush and satin the latter a blue banner with lovely wild roses and water colors (coast pieces) after Susan Hale and Langerfeldt, those of the former Mt Desert scenes, and that of the latter finely representing old birch tree trunks

Mrs Wood showed beautiful specimens of china decoration, both in painting and gilding, and painting on satin and plush, one of the most beautiful of the former being a screen—white lilies on a black ground. An open fire-place set, bellows and wood basket, glowed with sunflowers, narcissi (jonquils), and other flowers, and a circular looking-glass frame was most lovely, apple blossoms standing out from the maroon plush, a cluster also seeming to have dropped on the clear glass.

This plush painting is in oils, the flowers, or decorations, standing out in relief against the ground which seems peculiarly fitted for that treatment. It is something new, or comparatively so, instruction in which Mrs. Wood received from Mrs Pope, of New York, wife of the late well-known portrait-painter, John Pope, of that city, whose studio continues to be occupied by his wife.

With regard to china decorations, arrangements are soon to be made for baking that sort of ware at the pottery in this city, thus saving time and expense in sending it to Boston for that purpose.

THE PRAISES OF MEN.

A poor little girl in a tattered gown,
Wandering along through the crowded town,
All weary and worn on the curb sat down
By the side of the way to rest,
Bedimmed with tears were her eyes of brown,
Her hands on her bosom pressed

The night was approaching and winter's chill blast
That fell on the child as it hurried past,
Congealed the tears that were falling fast
From the poor little maiden's eyes
The blinding snow on her pale cheek cast,
Unheeding her plaintive cries

Now, hurriedly passing along the street,
She catches the sound of approaching feet
And wearily rises as if to entreat
Some aid from the passer by,
But slowly and sadly resumes her seat,
Repelled by the glance of his eye.

He saw the wild tempest resistlessly hurl
The gathering snowflakes with many a whirl,
Upon her bare head where each soft shining curl
Was swept by the breath of the storm,
But what did he care for the little girl?
His raiment was ample and warm

He went to a charity meeting that night,
And spoke, to the listeners great delight,
Of how 'twas the duty of all to unite
The suffering poor to relieve,
And held up his check for a thousand at sight,
So all of the crowd could perceive

He handed the check to the treasurer, when
The audience applauded again and again
But the angel who holds the recording pen
This sentence methinks did record
He doeth his alms to be seen of men,
The praise of men is his only reward

The papers next morning had much to say
Of how the good gentleman did display
His generous spirit in giving away
So much to the poor man's cause
He smiled as he read his own praise that day,
And thought of the night's applause

Nearby in the same paper went on to repeat
A story they'd heard of how out in the street,
A watchman at dawning of morn, on his beat,
A poor little child had found
With only the snow as a winding sheet,
Frozen to death on the ground

And who can declare that when God shall unfold
Eternity's records, He will not hold
Him guilty of murder who seeks with his gold
In charity's name to buy
The praises of men while out in the cold
He leaves a poor child to die

YOUTHFUL DEPRAVITY.

Three Principal Sources of Crime.

VILE READING MATTER, THE POOL ROOMS AND CHEAP THEATRES—THE BOY CRIMINALS' BOOK—ANTHONY COMSTOCK'S WORK—OPINIONS OF JUDGE COWING AND SURROGATE ROLLINS

[From the N Y Tribune]

The great prevalence of crime among certain classes of boys and young men in this and neighboring cities has been such as to attract wide attention It has even called forth comment from judges in the criminal courts and others who have become most accustomed by everyday occurrences to the details of criminal records Judge Cowing in the Court of General Sessions one morning little more than a week ago, after half a dozen or more lads had been arraigned before him for some of the most serious crimes, felt called upon to speak from the bench in very earnest terms of the alarming increase of crime among young men of this class His sentiments are borne out by the testimony of all those who have to do with the labor of arresting and restraining crime or in seeking to reform those who have fallen into bad ways The work of Anthony Comstock the agent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, has given him the best of opportunities to learn the facts with regard to the extent that vice and crime has spread among the youthful classes He keeps a record of all the reports of arrests for offences of this character that come under his observation Newspaper clippings relating to such occurrences are pasted in a scrapbook which he calls the "boy criminals book" It is not pleasant reading and presents an array of data of youthful crime that seems almost incredible Taking the first six months of 1881 there were records of the arrest of 33 boys under 20 years for larceny Of these 21 were under 16 and 9 were under 12 years of age For burglary 25 lads were arrested whose ages varied from 7 to 21 years. All, excepting 5 of these were under 16 years and 17 were under 12 years For murder 7 were arrested One was 21 one 20 one 19 one 18, two were 16 and one was 9 years of age For highway robbery 11 were arrested all 16 years of age or under One was 15 three were 16, one was 1[illegible] two were 14 one was 12 two were 10 one was 9 and one was 7 years old Three boys were arrested for arson, one was 17 years of age another 12 and the third 11 There were two pickpockets, each 16 years old One boy of 13 was arrested for murderous assault One boy of 13 and another of 1[illegible] were arrested for train wrecking There were four youthful suicides in the list Two were boys of 18, 1 was a girl of 1[illegible] another a girl of 14 For gambling 29 lads were arrested all under 20 years, for forgery 2 each 21 years old

Looking through this book after the end of the first 6 months of 1881, the most remarkable record is that of the month of February of this year In that single month there were accounts of 34 arrests for larceny where the ages of the culprits ran from 8 to 19 years, 19 for burglary between 13 and 21 years, 8 for highway robbery between the same ages, for murder 1 lad of 1[illegible] 2 girls of 17, 1 boy of 14 and another boy of 12, for felonious assault 3 were arrested between 12 and 21, 1 boy of 16 for train wrecking, 1 of 18 for passing counterfeit money and another for picking pockets There were 5 suicides of girls between 11 and 18 and 4 attempted suicides of boys between 17 and 19 There were 5 boys arrested as common drunkards whose ages ran from 8 to 19 years The boy of 8 died, 1 lad of 19 was arrested for arson

Mr Comstock said he thought there were three great sources and causes of youthful crime The chief one was the vile reading matter that was distributed under flaring titles as boys and girls' story papers and cheap novels They deprived and often half crazed the youthful minds that fed on them until the commission of this or that crime was the most natural of results A second cause Mr Comstock said was the pool room and policy shops The places where pool for drinks' was advertised were patronized almost exclusively by boys barely out of their teens So was a large proportion of the policy shops The small earnings of the boys would not enable them to spend the money requisite for this kind of life thefts from employers would be the first step to ruin, hastened by intemperance and other forms of vice by which they would be surrounded in such places Mr Comstock attributed the third cause to the low theatres The price of admission was trifling, and these places gathered in the young fellows who were ripe for mischief, or ready to be led into any form of wickedness that attracted them The representations upon the stages in these theatres were quite sufficient to do the work of dragging these quick witted and hot blooded boys into the quagmires of vice These three evils Mr Comstock thought, were the ones most to be contended against and as they lost their influence the youth of this city would appear less and less in its criminal records

Judge Cowing said to a Tribune reporter recently that the large proportion of youthful criminals convicted of the gravest offenses was startling Fully ninety per cent of those arraigned and convicted in the General Sessions for burglary and robbery and other crimes which were punished by very long sentences, was boys or young men under the age of twenty five Sometimes an offender old in years as well as in crime, a professional criminal would be brought there, but it was the rare exception The young criminals seemed to work in "gangs," the members of different gangs coming from different localities in the city There was the "Cherry-st. gang," the "West Side gang," the "Bowery gang" and scores of others. When they started out upon the commission of some crime they would generally go in small companies of from three to six.

"You know," Judge Cowing continued, "that burglary is the breaking into an inhabited building in the night time with felonious intent. It is one of the most serious of crimes, and society cannot protect itself except by punishing it with very extreme penalties. But these youthful criminals seem to be entirely regardless of this. They do not seem to expect to get much booty for they will break into dwellings frequently where they know that little is to be had and sometimes apparently from pure depravity. When they are arraigned they appear to be as hardened as you might expect the oldest professional criminal to be."

"Do you discriminate in the length of the sentences you inflict," the reporter asked, "in favor of the younger criminals?"

"No," the Judge answered, "not on account of years simply, where the convict has gone beyond boyhood. The severity of the punishment rather turns upon the question whether it is the first, second or sixth conviction. I always make an effort to discover the antecedents of the convict If it is his first offence to make the punishment comparatively light, and to have it take a reformatory shape. The very long sentences imposed here have been almost invariably in cases of incorrigible offenders who have been convicted frequently. The most of these even are comparatively young men. I have sometimes wondered what became of the older criminals—whether they reformed or died, or became too sharp to be detected There are no evidences that the younger criminals are used as tools by the older ones The young burglars are unskilful, and appear to be guided only by their own depraved propensities.

"There is a provision in the new Code of Criminal Procedure of an extraordinary character which has not yet been invoked in the criminal courts of this city nor, so far as I am aware, in the State It permits the Judge presiding in a court where a criminal is convicted for the third time of a felony, or the fifth time of a misdemeanor, to formally declare him an habitual criminal Then a description of the man's appearance, and a statement of his record is sent to the District-Attorney and to the Police Department of each city in the State He can be arrested at any time by anybody, without a warrant, upon suspicion If he is seen at night under suspicious circumstances, if he is found with any dangerous weapon in his possession, or for any similar cause, he can be taken into custody by anyone. He is during the rest of his life a branded man It would be a terrible punishment, to inflict upon any man and the discretion that is lodged in the court to inflict it ought not to be exercised except in cases where other measures have been found wholly inadequate to restrain the man's criminal disposition It would not certainly be proper in the case of a young man when there was hope of reforming."

Surrogate Rollins, in speaking about some of his experiences while District Attorney, said that it was undoubtedly true that a very large proportion of the criminals put on trial were scarcely more than boys

"What becomes of the older criminals?" was asked.

"The most of them cease to be criminals, I suppose," was the answer "The young convicts you see in the General Sessions are very few of them in training to make professional criminals Bad company, drinking hot temper, and many other things that are incident to the life of young fellows of that class in this city have led them into it But thousands of them after they have had one taste of prison life have had enough and generally find it better to keep out of crime and try to earn a decent living But there are some queer circumstances about the records of crime among the young It seems as if certain forms of violations of the law become epidemic at times and will sweep over the city. Thus at one time we will have a run of pickpockets, and it will seem as if almost all the boys brought in have been caught in that crime Then there will be a fever of breaking into buildings that will be as general and as unaccountable, and so on through the rest. I do not, however think there is reason to believe that crime among the young in this city is very perceptibly on the increase, if at all

He wasn't saying anything "Man and wife are all one are they?" she asked. "Yes, what of it?" said he suspiciously "Why in that case," said his wife, "I came home awfully tipsy last night, and feel terribly ashamed of myself this morning." He never said a word

---

ANOTHER LITTLE GAME which is picking up a good many victims at the West is worked in this way. It takes two men to make a sale. No 1 comes along, says he is doing a big business in wagon tongue patents, but is on his way home, and will sell the right for that county for $250 The wary granger declines to be taken in, and the discomfited visitor says, "All right, but if you think better of it let me know," and insists on leaving his address. A few days later, No 2 comes along He has heard that the granger has the county right for the patent, and he will give $400 for it The farmer sees an opportunity to make $150 in a quiet way and sells the right No 2 pays $10 to bind the bargain, and goes his way. The farmer sends his note for $250 to No —and then the circuit is complete We must say that we don't greatly sympathize with the farmer who permits himself to be taken in by this game, for no strictly honest man could fall into such a trap. A man who lets his covetousness so far get ahead of his sense of honor, that he will pretend to own property of any kind, which does not really belong to him, for the sake of making money out of another person's ignorance as to its ownership, need not complain if he gets bitten An honest man, in such a case as that described above would inform "No. 2," that the county right was not his to dispose of, that would be simply the truth, and, as usual, would be the best policy in a business way

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame" —Civil Service Gazette.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr Kennedy should have received the following letter By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful

TROY, N Y, April 8th, 1880

Dr D Kennedy, Rondout, N Y

DEAR SIR —Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel called by the doctors the Brick dust Sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated causing me untold pain Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy I tried it in my case and after using about one and one half bottles I voided a stone from the Bladder of an oval shape 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface I send you the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed Since then I have felt no pain I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfulness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible disease You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so for the benefit of other sufferers

Yours truly
